Quick Victory Possible, Berlin Believes; Soviet Officials Split.

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE.

LONDON, June 16 .- (AP)-German demands on Soviet Russia have created a strain between Berlin and Moscow which will burst in open hostility unless an arrangement for closer economic collaboration can be worked out, a reliable foreign source declared

The crisis is approaching rapidly, said this source, who has underground contacts with agents all over continental Europe.

He attributed the situation to German pressure for more oil, grain and ore from the Soviet Union and, on the other side, the conviction of some Russian leaders that broadening German influence through the Nazis' European victories was endangering Russia's own position.

Russian diplomatic sources re-fuse to go beyond the statements of the official Soviet news agency, Tass, which insist that German-Russian relations continue to be amicable.

Russian generals who originally were wary of Germany's military strength, he said, decided at a meeting two weeks ago that the Red army and air force are strong enough to hold the country against a Germany harassed on other tronts by Britain.

At the same time, this source

Des Moines Doctor Seen as Likely Successor to Mark Smith.

Nominations for international officers of the Kiwanis International will be discussed by authorized delegates to the 25th annual convention here tonight, and a Des Moines doctor appears to be in the favored position to succeed Mark A. Smith, of Macon, as international president. He is Dr. W. Eugene Wolcott, orthopedic surgeon, who twice has been treasurer of Kiwanis International. He is a veteran in the Kiwanis organization and for 20 years has held high offices in it.

The conference on recommendations for nominations will be held at the Piedmont hotel at 9:15 o'clock tonight, with Bennett O. Knudson, immediate past president, acting as chairman. Representatives elected by districts will be the only Kiwanians allowed to attend this session.

Government Is Blamed for Labor Strife

New National Policy Urged at Industrial Conference.

PITTSBURGH, June 16.-(A)-Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, declared tonight defense strikes could be checked effectively "without the Army and without seizing industry" by revamping the national labor policy; enforcing local and state laws protecting citizens' rights; and giving workers the right to vote on

In an address prepared for delivery to a conference of indus-trialists and described by the NAM as a statement of management's position regarding seizure of defense plants, Fuller recalled ne use of troops during the strike of airplane factory workers at Inglewood, Cal., and said:

"Inglewood was the extreme result of the acts of a labor government that has outdone itself-so much so that the United States Army had to be called in to cordramatically the evil of a vacillating 'too much rope' attitude toward labor.

The correct solution is to avoid strikes, not government strike-busting. Regrettably things have reached the point where the President has to treat sumptoms of social dissolution by military years has encouraged, not discouraged strikes.'

Fuller said that "overnight the unions are discovering Communists right and left in their ranks, and are battling for headlines in their newspaper effort to get rid

"But, ne added, "it took almost a national labor debacle to prod them into action. Are we going to begin and end with the announcement that unions themselves are about to clean house? "This stamping out of reds should not be left to a few union heads to turn out of jobs their former associates. Reds need to be ridden not only out of the unions, but out of the schools, out of govrnment, out of the United States. And that's an administration job.'

Giving Unions a Chance

Reports from Washington state that the federal government now has in its hands complete information on practically every subversive individual in union labor circles. Not only the direct agents, the undercover saboteurs, from Moscow, Berlin and Rome, are known and identified, but the "fellow travelers," those American eccentrics who play the game of the enemy agents, also have been spotted.

It would be possible for federal agencies to move in today and place every one of these men and women where they could do no further harm.

However, believing that the overwhelming majority of union workers are as staunchly American as any of us-a statement of which there can be no doubt-it is the present policy at Washington to permit organized labor itself a fair opportunity to "clean house." Government action will be taken only as a last resort, in event the unions fail of their own volition to get rid of these traitors in their ranks.

Information on the identities of these enemies is being furnished all loyal union leaders. Evidences that this policy is bearing fruit are already to be found in the news reports. Increasing proof of labor's intrinsic loyalty to America will be forthcoming from day to day.

Labor has been told which individuals in its organization are enemies of the nation. Labor is getting rid of them. If labor does not do a thorough job, the federal government will complete it.

That is the simple analysis of the present status of this irritating problem. If the present policy works out satisfactorily it will be by far the best way.

But Communist and Nazi influences that foment strikes, slowdowns or outright sabotage, must go. It is unfortunate that it ever becomes necessary to use the army to protect loyal American workers, as it had to be used in the airplane strike at Inglewood, Cal. But strikes in plants producing important defense items cannot, and will not, be tolerated.

Once purge labor ranks of the enemies within the gates, and American workers will display as great loyalty and willingness to sacrifice as any Americans.

The Axis boys talk as if they were in there permanently. These are the fellows who dwell, off and on, on our laughable ignorance of history.

No more is heard of Hess, now that the British cousin has held him long enough to know he isn't wired with a delayed fuse.

Germans Withdraw

The Germans are withdrawing forces from Syria. Planes, pilots, ground personnel and "tourists" are checking out.

The British have been forced to withdraw from Norway, Belgium, France, Greece, Crete. Each time they went out fighting.

The Germans went in to prepare for the use of Syria as an offensive base and for bombing operations against Palestine, Cyprus and the oil pipeline from Iraq. The French are their allies, in a manner of speaking.

The British went in to the various countries to help them in the preservation of their independence. They did not enter for the purpose of utilizing those countries as bases for offensive action against Germany except in that they were required by the dictates of war. The Germans, unable to bring overwhelming odds against the foe in Syria, are leaving hurriedly without a fight. The British, facing overwhelming odds everywhere, fought until the bitter end. On the day that American and British planes blacken the German skies, the Third Reich will crumble. There will be no place to flee and the world again will see the spectacle of Germany pleading for the mercy of the world against the same destruction visited oday upon England. It is in the German blood. On that day the world should have good reason to remember Rotterdam. To say nothing of Warsaw, London, Liverpool, Coventry, Plymouth, Glasgow, Dublin, Alexandria and the nameless dead of Nazi concentration camps. This time let it be hoped other nations can be tough. Germany has asked for it.

"I see by the paper that women now control 75 per cent of the nation's income-spending," said a voice on the bus. "That leaves 25 per cent unaccounted for."

A Testing Period

This week marks the beginning of what may be termed the third phase in the southeastern power problem and its solution. Upon the success or failure of the plans now in operation depends whether or not it will be necessary to invoke a still more drastic plan for curtailment of the use of electric power.

This week a voluntary system of reduction, by one-third, in the use of electrical power by industry becomes effective. It is hoped by power officials this will be sufficient to carry through the crucial period of power shortage caused by the unusually dry winter and spring and the heavy demands of rapidly expanding

The first period may be said to be that during which power officials were worried about the falling water supplies in their reservoirs. but during which they hoped to be able to carry through without calling for public aid in the crisis.

The second period, beginning some three weeks ago, was that in which they appealed to the general public to cut down in use of electricity. By careful conservation of the power in homes, in stores, in theaters, by elimination of much night display and advertising, by reducing air-conditioning usage and by other means this has resulted in saving several hundred thousand kilowatt hours, a contribution of importance, but insufficient to meet the situation.

Now industry, voluntarily, is reducing its power consumption by one-third. This will, naturally, involve hardship on some people. It severely handicaps many factories which, for the first time in years, have a heavy backlog of orders and are making good profits. It will mean a loss of work hours for many workers. Some plants, which have operated three shifts on a 24-hour basis, seven days a week, will have to lay off one of those shifts of workers. Others, by spreading the work over the weekends and on Sundays, may be able to avoid hardship for their workers. But it means sacrifice, undoubtedly.

If this plan does not result in sufficient saving, it may be necessary to invoke federal government priorities, to withhold power entirely from industries or business unessential to the defense program. In that event Georgia will suffer severely. For, while many Georgia manufacturers have received defense orders, almost all of these could be transferred to other sections without injuring the national program and, if the power shortage is not quickly remedied, this will undoubtedly be

The general public can help in two ways. First, by practicing the most rigid economy possible in home use of electricity and, secondly, by encouraging retail stores and places of amusement which curtail their night window displays, marquee advertising, air-conditioning, etc. This curtailment is a patriotic action of the individual business firms involved and ft is but right that the public should show their appreciation of that patriotism by continuing to patronize such places as they did in normal times.

A coast farmer complains that grasshoppers eat the paint off his buildings. Nothing, in spring, tones the system like a celery tonic sign off a barn.

Whereas the British call their warships the Irrepressible and so forth, we are naming a destroyer for the late Marine, Smedley Butler, which comes to the same thing.

Georgia Editors Say: WHO'S BOSS NOW? (From The Moultrie Observer.)

The labor unions have had trouble keeping their own members and locals under control. They now have the help of Uncle Sam. At last it has been decided that the interests of the public and the national safety shall be first. The government taking charge of an airplane factory on the coast where a strike persisted and parties to the strike refused mediation should have a salutary

It is not to be assumed that the workers are to blame every time there is a strike. The new plan for dealing with strikes that delay the work of preparedness will be applied where employers are stiff-necked and refuse to compromise, as well as in cases where labor is the unruly member to the controversy.

We have had enough of this delay and obstruction growing out of obstinacy. In times of peace and with normal conditions the public and the government have been disposed to leave it to labor and capital to fight their own battles. We are now in a time of crisis, and the nation has a stake that it must defend. The work must go on while mediation and arbitration handle the disputes between employers and employes.

Some lasting benefits may come from the examples where the government steps in and takes the business and the work in hand. One result should be general house cleaning by the labor. They must learn to govern themselves. unions. Frequently these strikes are frivolous, and they are frowned upon by the labor leaders of the nation, but there has been no machinery for regulating the conduct of local unions. There must be some such machinery if union labor is to endure. Subversive elements get into the local unions, some of them unfriendly to the public and national safety as well as to capitalism. It unions must be American in spirit. They must be loyal to our flag and our form of government. It is time to give serious thought to these things and take action that will nip disloyalty in the bud.

WASHINGTON PARADE

BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS AND KENNETH G. CRAWFORD

Gladstone Williams has, for many years, been The Constition's Washington correspondent. A native of Dublin, Ga., he is today regarded as one of the best informed among the Washington newspaper fraternity. Kenneth Crawford is head of the Washington Bureau of PM, the New York daily. He was formerly with e United Press and the Philadelphia Record. The new column by Williams and Crawford replaces "Capital Parade," which was necessarily discontinued when Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner, its writers, joined the Navy and Army, respectively.

HIGH POINT IN UNITY WASHINGTON, June 16 .- Nothing better illustrates the political pattern or the economic philosophy of the third New Deal than President Roosevelt's appointment of Mr. Justice Harlan F. Stone as chief justice of the United States. Both a liberal and a lifelong Republican, the New Hampshire-born new chief justice epitomizes Mr. Roosevelt's studied determination to give his third-term administration a strong nationalistic flavor, divorced of partisan considerations, yet well tempered with liberalism.

It marks the high point thus far in continuation of the national unity theme which the President, even before his re-election, set last year in naming two other staunch Republicans, Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox, to his cabinet. Since then a host of Republican appointees have found themselves in high positions with the government in Washington. Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson, a former Republican federal jurist from the state of New York, may be cited as an example of some of those appointed in utter disregard of the usual political considerations. The same is true of the rank and file of business executives who have been brought to Washington as directing heads of the organization created to administer the nation's huge defense program. Most of them were anything but Roosevelt supporters in the last

Risking criticism from the ranks of his own party, Mr. Roosevelt has clearly leaned far backward in an effort to avoid any charge of not giving the country a nonpartisan administration at a time when national unity is the call of the hour. The chief justiceship of the United States is the highest appointive office in the gift of the President. Rarely does the opportunity arise for filling such a vacancy. Only 11 previous times in history, in fact, three of them under George Washington, has the President been called upon to name a chief justice. In resisting the temptation to give the office to some deserving member of his own party, Mr. Roosevelt, therefore, must be credited with the highest motives,

ONLY ONE PRECEDENT Only once before, so far as a hasty examination of the record shows. has a President named a chief justice who was a member of the opposition political party. That was in 1910, when President Taft, a Republican, named Associate Justice Edward D. White chief justice to succeed Melville W. Fuller. Mr. White was a Democrat, a southerner from Louisiana, and a veteran of the Confederate army who originally had been appointed to the bench by President

But if the Stone appointment represents the political pattern of the Roosevelt third term, more significantly, perhaps, it also reflects the economic philosophy of the New Deal. One of the broadest-gauged jurists of the present generation, Mr. Stone took his place with the liberal element of the court early after his appointment under the Coolidge administration. Rarely has he wavered from that attitude, though the issues with which the court has dealt during the past decade and a half have been sharp and varied. The justification for his appointment, from the President's standpoint, is that nearly always he has been a follower of the Roosevelt philosophy. Before the Roosevelt first term he had shown ; deep feeling for the kindred doctrines of one of the truly great liberals of the court, Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, with whom he served for some years. There is no doubt that he will give the tribunal leadership in the same liberal policy of construction which was the real objective behind the controversy whipped up Mr. Roosevelt a few years back when he sought to enlarge the membership of the court.

Little has been said about it so far, but the influence of the retiring Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was a strong factor in Mr. Stone's selection. Upon the President's return from Hyde Park recently, just after the Hughes retirement had been announced, the venerable chief justice was invited to the White House. Over a simple noonday luncheon, served informally in the President's private executive office, he and Mr. Roosevelt talked over the vacancy. It is logical to conclude that the Stone appointment was the outgrowth of that conference.

TEASING COMMENTATORS On the lighter side of things, the President must have chuckled to himself over the surprise occasioned among Washington commentators by the selection of Mr. Stone. He takes a "fiendish" delight at times in keeping newspapermen guessing on major appointments waiting to be filled. The farther wrong they guess the more he chuckles. It is a little game he is suspected of playing with the newsmen. In the present case only a bare few were lucky enough to hit on the right name; none, so far as known, was bold enough to make a positive prediction of Mr. Stone's choice. The most written about him was, for the greater part, merely to mention his name as one of the possibilities. Much of the advance speculation had predicted the appointment of Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, whose nomination for a place on the court, along with that of Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, long had been anticipated. Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly got the same sort of delight out the complete surprise he caused a year ago this month when he was the fact that it was not a threw a bombshell into the Republican national convention by announcing the cabinet appointments of Secretaries Stimson and Knox. So taken aback were the Republicans that they all but forgot the business at hand of nominating a candidate for President, and for two days devoted much of their efforts to denouncing the new cabinet officers for going over to the New Deal.

NEW YORK Advertising June 16. And Free Press For a small bet I would undertake to prove that nobody in the newspaper business knows less about advertising than I do. know nothing about the rates for the ads which enable my cherished employer to reward my unique talents, and I think of advertising only when I pick up our fearless journal and say to myself. "Nice fat paper" or skinny today." Some "Kind Some dumb instinct tells me that when it is a fat paper the boys in the advertising end have been booting in a nice piece of what it takes.

Having thus qualified myself I invite your sympathetic attention to a suggestion that the daily American press is more important to the American people than the people realize, and that if the time ever should come when the radio makes it impossible for the papers to operate at a profit on legitimate advertising revenue, the big advertisers would be as sorry as anyone else. When that happens, your press goes wrong. akes subsidies from political parties and foregn governments, from big financial interests and groups led by demagogs, and your free system goes to hell in a handbasket. Glaring Examples have only to consider the scurrilous intemperance and anti-American treachery of the Communist papers which receive their editorial policy and their support over the party line from Moscow, and the utterly dishonest racket sheets produced in the name of organized labor by political unioneers who stick up merchants for useless advertising space under the implied threat that otherwise they may be listed as unfair and shunned by union

Another fine example, now fortunately eliminated, was the late Huey Long's Louisiana Progress which passed from his hands into those of the incredibly bold but crook, Governor Dick Leche, and shook down even the poor houses and lunatic asylums of the state for display ads. This thief and his associate larcenists forced all state and municipal employes to subscribe, and then on them a course of propaganda intended to vindicate Leche and company. Father Coughlin turned out a fine example of the demagog press, as violent, in its way, as the worst of the Communist papers, and there was a paper called The Menace years ago which went after the Cathpaper called The Menace olics a good deal the same as Coughlin abused the Jews.

No paper serving a party or group under subsidy can ever be expected to tell the truth objectively, as the French people have reason to know and regret, and a country reduced to such sources for its information on events and ssues will surely fall into bloodthirsty groups or come together under one bloodthirsty group as in Germany, Russia and Italy. RAF BOMBS ON GERMANY One of the newspapermen among the eleven who com-pleted this past weekend a tour of major defense plants in the east and middle west was Joseph Harsch, who returned from Germany few months ago. He now is with the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor.

He was asked about the effect of English bombing on Germany, particularly Berlin.

"Perfectly tremendous," he said. "The first time they came there was fear and astonishment. They had been told the British planes could not pierce the antiaircraft defenses of Berlin. When they did, the shock was tremendous.

"The next day, though, they had recovered from it. They said it was just a mistake. They were sure it would be corrected that same day. But that same night the English came again. This, too, disturbed them. They could hardly believe it. The English came the third night, and this had a most upsetting effect.

"After this they did not come for a while. The Germans I met after that were all smiles. They said that the Germans had at last solved it, had found the weakness in their ring of guns through which the English had come. Everything would be all right. "A few days later the English came again. This was discon-Yet, the German psychology was that each time it was just or three times as much work. A German bomber can bomb London, return to a channel coast base, refuel, reload and go back to bomb again.

An English plane must make the long flight to Berlin and back. There is hardly time for one round-trip flight. What the English must have is planes of all types-bombers and fighters. They want, most of all, bombers which can go to such heights that fighter planes cannot reach them. They want this so they may bring to German cities the destructive force of more accurate bombing and also the more nerve-shaking sight of daytime bombing.

They will have this by 1942. Everything depends on England holding out through the summer and well into the winter, by which time the great flood of American industry will be arriving in such lots as to turn the tide. The Mediterranean may be lost but as long as the British Isles last and as long as ships can land there and as long as there are airports for planes, Germany has not won. England must endure raids and bombs and also must endure a powerful peace offensive which will come if Hitler decides he cannot, or must not, attempt an invasion. It is not at all a cheerful picture. The English position is serious.

An invasion is not at all impossible of achievement. It is a grim picture but not an impossible one. If the English can hold on and fight off whatever Germany flings at them, war or a German-dictated peace, the tide will begin to turn in about seven months from now.

England is getting much of our production. Some of it is going to the bottom of the sea. But she is getting enough to enable her to hold on with increasing strength. This country already is a very real factor in English defense

ENCOURAGING NOTE It should be encouraging to Americans, who like to believe in their own country and its capacity for meeting situations, that engineers and the staff leaders of our country have devised the two most effective weapons against "Blitz" warfare yet to be conceived.

The most important single thing I saw on the entire defense tour was the "escort plane carrier. This, which may have been President Roosevelt's idea and which certainly has his enthusiastic support, is the most sensational development of the defensive side of the war.

If England had been in possession of small airplane carriers, she would not have lost a third of the tonnage lost in this war. Airplanes can scout out submarines, surface raiders, and can drive off bombers and otherwise protect a convoy.

We are taking merchant ships and making small carriers of them. England has followed the old custom of arming merchant ships to protect convoys. One may be reasonably sure that England is following this country's lead and now is remaking some of her merchant ships into carriers. The other invention was the steel pill box with a turret. An airport, protected with these, could maintain antiaircraft fire even though strafed from the air by machinegun fire and bombing. This is an American development,

To make an expert of any kind, take an ordinary bright boy from an ordinary family and train him long and well. In the course of time, his particular skill becomes second nature to him. He may not know much of other matters, but he does his job with an ease and sureness that all the world admires. He knows his stuff. But skill is not his only advantage. He is on his own. Whether he is a cabinet maker, a brain surgeon, a research scientist or tennis player, he uses his own judgment, makes his own decisions, and takes what action is necessary. When it becomes necessary to select a public servant, whether a mayor, a congressman, a bureau chief or a cabinet member, it is seldom possible to find an expert, The man selected, whether by vote or appointment, is an amateur at the job. He has served no apprenticeship. He has, perhaps, shown ability in some other vocation, but he must learn his new job from the ground up. To regard him as a great man merely because he has a public job is silly. He is such a person are. He can perform no more miracles than you can.

But this does not mean he cannot do his job well. he can become an expert at it—as any other intelligent person could. Public service requires unusual skills, but any sensible, energetic and industrious person should be able to develop them. Why, then, does the public servant so often fail to make good?

Primarily because this is a democracy. He sees what needs doing. He realizes there is waste, inefficiency, useless effort and folly in the conduct of his department, But the moment he tries to do anything, he collides with other men who have different ideas. He must convince or compromise with the indifferent, the vain, the stubborn, the ignorant, the selfseeking and the stupid. If he tries to act alone, he makes enemies

He fails for want of power. And that explains the failure of our defense effort—for we are failing when we fall far short what we could do.

The Germans succeed in every undertaking for two reasons. Men of apparent ability are tried; immediately demoted if they fail; quickly advanced if they make good. And every man trusted with responsibility is given the power he needs to do No other system can succeed in time of war. And the more tardily we learn that truth, the more we shall suffer.

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP)—After dipping as much as % cent early in the session to the lowest level in 10 days, wheat prices rallied two cents today, scoring most of the gain after mid-session.

Gains were reduced by last-minute Gains were reduced by last-minute profit-taking, spreading and hedging sales, but wheat closed 4-% higher than Saturday, July $1.00½-$1.00%, September $1.01½-$1.01¼.

Traders attributed the rally largely to short covering and buying touched off by a sudden let-up in sales, reports of rust damage in the southwest and the government's action requesting German consular agents to leave the country. Some mill buying and another sharp advance in soybeans which reached new highs for the season also strengthened wheat.

Corn closed ½-% higher than Saturday. Oats unchanged to ¼ off; soybeans 2¼-3½ higher; rye unchanged to ¼ up and lard 2-5 higher.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—
The most important time of day for taking important action along all lines appears to be after 1:54 p. m. An excellent period for constructive work in matters of finance, personal advancement, constructive planning for future prespects and interviewing or consulting people in important positions.

August 23rd and September 22nd may have a tendency to run into obstacles if started before 12:28 p. m., old, practical ideas may be pushed forward to advantage. Before 6:04 p. m. favors matters pertaining to land and property. The remainder of the day suggests sticking to routine.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—The influences prevailing today do not favor entering into anything that is indefinite, or that is not thoroughly understood, for too much action or too quick action on your part may easily bring losses. A good day to be cautious.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)-The period previous to 11:13 a. m. favors dealings with professional people and those in authority. After 11:13 a. m. favors attending to matters that have already been started or routine mat-ters. The period does not especially favor new beginnings.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—During the entire day and until 6:07 p. m. financial efforts and actual finances may be wasted if you give in to a feeling of too lavish spending. After 6:07 p. m. favors social affairs.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) — Previous to 12:42 p. m. avoid carelessness and disagreements in the home. The remainder of the day and until midnight will be an excellent time for contacting the public and advancing all personal interests.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Previous to 12:36 p. m. favors expansion along financial lines. An excellent period for dealing in education J. legal and banking interest. During the afternoon and evening proceed cautiously in dealings of an unusual nature.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—This morning and until 11:01 a. m. brings influences which tend to irritability, haste, a desire for quick changes, which lead to discord, break-ups and sudden losses. High tension fills the air and calmness in all things should be your goal. Be especially careful of accidents during the entire day.

'Round Table' Of Kiwanians On Air Tonight

Willis Sutton Joins in Discussion on Ways To Meet Emergency.

A special round-table discussion by six members of Kiwanis Inter-national dealing with problems of how to swing all volunteer community groups behind the President's national emergency program will be broadcast over WATL tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Topics dealing with housing, pro-democracy education, underprivileged children and vocational armament instruction will be considered under the general heading, "Kiwanis in Action."

Seated at the round table will be Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools; Herbert C. Hunsaker, of the American Association for Adult Education; Chester Williams, of the United States office of Education; P. O. Davis, director of extension, Alabama Polytechnic Institute; C. Melville Wright, Layman's Crusade for Christian Education, and H. C. Mayer, vice president of the Council for Democracy.

The "Kiwanis Reporter." a program on which daily goings-on at the convention are reported, is heard over WATL at 5:30 each

"COLLEGE HUMOR" SALUTES NEBRASKA

The students of the University of Nebraska will be given the musical "bow" on the "College Humor" broadcast tonight, when vel-vet-voiced Virginia Verrill will salute the Scarlet and Cream with her own arrangement of "No. 10 Lullaby Lane."

WSB at 9:30 o'clock the comedy routine involves Dean Tom Wallace's co-worker, Marlin Hurt, who is bothered with labor troubles, as his alter ego "Beulah" has the traveling bug—has threat-ened to quit and join a circus. Bob Strong's College Humor band closes the broadcast with "Beulah's" favorite, "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

JOSEPH KRUTCH ON INVITATION TO LEARNING

Joseph Wood Krutch, author and dramatic critic, will make his third appearance on Columbia network's "Invitation to Learning" tonight at 8:30 o'clock over WGST. He aids Huntington Cairns and Mark Van Doren, the program regulars, in their appraisal of Henry David Thoreau's "Walden."

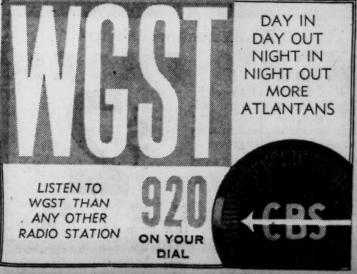

"Walden" is a record of two years spent in solitude by Thoreau on the shores of Walden Pond, near Concord, Mass. In this book, as in others of his works, the famous naturalist expressed his philosophy of individualism.

Tonight's broadcast is the last for "Invitation to Learning" on its current-time schedule. Beginning Sunday, June 22, the program will be heard Sundays instead, from 1 to 1:30 o'clock.

Harry Lee Will Give Away Manuscript of New Novel

. LOTS OF BOOK LOVERS and literary people collect first editions, but original manuscript collectors are few and far between, for obvious reasons. The most obvious being, of course, that very few authors can be persuaded to part with something which they have become so attached to as their manuscripts. But Atlanta's Harry Lee is different. Which is a break for Atlanta! For Harry is going to give away the manuscript of his new novel, "No Measure Danced." But not to just one person—to hosts of them! You see, Helen Parker has planned an autograph tea for Harry next Monday afternoon at Rich's, and everyone who obtains a copy of his book will not only be complimented with the popular young author's autograph, but will receive in addition a page of his original manuscript. And, what's more, if you are extremely you MAY get an illustrated page.

For Harry is gifted in art as well as in letters, and frequently during the writing of his novel he gave way to this artistic urge and sketched a graphic illustration of a particularly impressive point. And then, course, there were times when he just sketched, with nothing particular in mind. The result being what is popularly known as "doodlings" along the margin of his pages. And, as you know, even a "doodling" is SOMETHING when it's done by so celebrated a person as Harry. Great things are expected of "No Measure Danced," for critics who have seen advance copies compare it favorably with the best of contemporary novels, and predict it will be one of the most talked of books of the year. Its background is a modern department store, and the story of its principal character, Lily Stagg, is that of thousands of women of today. Hence it is destined for wide appeal, and you'll doubtless be sorry if you don't get in on the distribution of its original manuscript next Mohday at Helen's tea.

Exercise Must Be A Regular Habit

By Ida Jean Kain.

The way to make exercise less work is to have in mind a clearcut picture of how you are going to look. Once you have in mind the figure you really want-inches slimmer and years younger-you won't have to prod yourself near-

And here's another good rule: Never skip your exercise for a single day. Even though you let your slimming slide only once, it loses some of its importance in your eyes. Then, too, you lose some of your momentum. It's hard to get started again, and to work up the same amount of enthu-

Exercise is so exact nowadays that you can get into trim with four or five simple ones. The day's workout should include one stretching exercise to supple and slim the midsection, a posture im-prover which doubles as a specific exercise for some problem measurement, and a leg-swinging rou-tine. These should be varied oc-casionally to keep you from slipping into the easiest way of doing them.

Here is a stretching exercise which is almost a program in it-self: Kick off your shoes and stretch tall, pulling up with the abdominal muscles and pulling down and under with the hips. Clasp hands high overhead with fingers interlocked, palms turned up to ceiling. Now walk on your tiptoes—walk the length of your largest room 20 times.

As it is, that exercise does almost as much for your posture as it does for your figure. But to make it do more toward straightening you out, make a point of stretching the neck to its full length, chin level, and of lifting the chest as you walk. Even Ziegfeld never devised a better

When you have finished walk-ing, rest for a minute or two. Then stand flat-footed in your bare feet, arms stretched overhead as before, and do sideward bends. Concentrating on the outside muscles each time to make them stretch. Repeat five to 10 times

HYDE PARK, Sunday .- After leaving the charming young ladies modeling the various uniforms for women defense workers on Friday morning, I went up to the International House to attend a conference on voluntary work camps. The morning was spent in hearing from representatives of NYA and CCC about the programs and work done in camps under government super-In the afternoon, the session was opened by talk by Mr. Kenneth Holland, who went to Europe in the early 30's to evaluate the work being done in these camps in various countries over there. He showed a picture of one of these students work camps in Switzerland which was extremely interesting.

Afterwards, a number of other people spoke of the value of the voluntary work camp. I think what emerged from the whole day was a realization that this type of camp, where some useful form of work for the community is performed, and where young people of various backgrounds and education meet, work and play together for a stated period, is distinctly educational. Purely academic education cannot achieve the same result.

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

I was sorry to have to leave a little before 4 o'clock, but I had to go to the dentist and then attend an hour's meeting of the committee for "The Open Road." This organization performs for people of the older age group much the same function that the work camp performs for people in the student group. Afterwards, I had a few friends to dine with me and went to see Gertrude Lawrence in "Lady in the Dark."

It closed last night for the summer, but I imagine it will reopen in the autumn, for the house was packed and everyone seemed to enjoy it. The music and the lyrics are very catchy. The haunting tune, which runs through the whole play and disturbs the "Lady in the Dark" so much, will repeat itself in your mind after you have Gertrude Lawrence is extremely good in this part. Strange Fate Nashville ponders the fate that has caused roommates on the club to uffer broken legs in the same season.

Johnny Mihalic and Gus Dugas joined the Voles 10 ays apart. They became roommates last year. Now they ave suffered broken legs only 20 days apart.

Could it be that Gus Dugas had it on his mind? No, that hardly seems likely. Poor Gus was just playing the game as he always does. He was trying to knock down Johnny Gerlach and prevent a double play. And in playing the game-goodness knows it would help to have more players with his spirit-Gus possibly ended his career.

All of us hope that Dugas comes out of it all right and is as good as a new dollar (used to be) when next spring rolls around.

After all, Gus has gone through some pretty strenuous nings at other points in his career. There was the time suffered a broken jaw in Pittsburgh. Another time he ffered a punctured lung when a rib was broken in a ollision with a fellow player.

Gus took these things in stride and maybe Father Time rill have a heart this time and let him recover unimaired. I sure hope so.

Both games will be nine-inning affairs unless, of course, they go into extra innings. The first should be over about 7:30 o'clock and there will be about a 35-minute wait for the second to start. Then the lights will be switched on and another full-sized battle Therefore, if John Fan is unable to attend the first game, he can imagine it wasn't a doubleheader after all, and get there in time for the second.

The club rested yesterday and will enjoy another off day Wed-nesday. Men's night, the annual occasion when the males are admitted free and the women pay the freight, will be held Thursday, starting at 8:15 o'clock. Mann expects some 15,000 to see the battle.

Memphis comes to town for a four-game series, starting Friday. The first battle will be played under the lights and it will be ladies' night. Another single game will be played Saturday afternoon with a double-header concluding BOLSTER HURLING. Purchase of Lawson was designed to lend support to Heusser and Emil Lochbaum, who have been fighting desperately with brilliant pitching to preserve the Crackers' lead. The rest of the hurlers seem to have developed acute cases of walks, wild pitches, illness known to pitchers. Lawson finished last season with the Browns, winning five and losing three. This year he was sold to Montreal, a farm club of the Dodgers. mostly in relief roles, he has been credited with three losses against no victories with the Royals. Heusser will be after his 11th victory of the season tonight. He has lost four. His last appearance was against Nashville last Friday and he won a 2-0 shutout. Men in training at the quartermaster motor transport school at Fort McPherson will be guests of the Cracker ball club at tonight's double-header. The men are from 17 different camps in this corps area and represent most of the

NEW YORK, June 16.—The fight mob along Busted Beak Boulevard is swinging toward the Fancy Dan.

A majority of the fighters, managers and ring enthusiasts interviewed by your correspondent figure that Billy Conn, the snappy stepping, artful jabber from Pittsburgh, will outpoint Joe Louis in 15 rounds at New York's Polo Grounds Wednesday and win the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Unless there is a late shift of opinion, Billy will enter the ring as the favorite of the guys in the know. However, the betting fraternity will likely have the champion favored at something like 21/2 to 1, the lowest odds ever offered against Louis. Joe was 4 to 1 against Max

First Night Game Ed Plant, bowling impresario of Columbus, Ga., and formerly a popular Atlantan, saw his first night game here Saturday. Plant was impressed by Emil Lochbaum's cockiness in being halfway to the bench after delivering a curve-ball third strike on a third out before the umpire called it. "There's a big leaguer, if I ever saw one," said Plant, a former follower of the Washington Senators. He is not sure he ever saw a big leaguer at Washington-except when the visiting teams played there.

CINCINNATI, June 16.—(P)—Benefited by fancy three-hit flinging by Bill Lohrman, the New York Giants were handed a 6-to-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds

The win was an out-and-out gift by the first two Reds' hurlers as the Giants did all their scoring in the opening three innings, before Manager Will McKechnie sent an "SOS" to the bullpen for Whitey Moore to mow 'em down from that point. All told, the Giants received nine bases on balls, all free, at no extra charge.

Johnny Vander Meer opened for the Reds by walking the first four men to face him. By that time, "Deacon Will" discovered it wasn't Johnny's afternoon.

Hornsby Told To Assert His Authority or Else Step Down.

Amid charges of dictatorship, personal exchanges and a sharp division among council members, city council yesterday engaged in a lively tilt about police administration policies and finally ended the matter without taking any official action, although the issue was debated for about 30 minutes.

The issue was injected into what had been a quiet council session when Councilman J. Allen Couch gained permission to read a letter he wrote Police Chief Hornsby, calling on the chief to assume aggressive charge of the depart-ment or "step down." Responsibility Cited.

In the course of the communication Couch pointed to the re-sponsibility of the position, saying it transcends "the clamoring of a mayor's petty, political activities,' asserting that if Hornsby takes an active leadership he will get the support of the public and the press and citing "Hornsby's strong position in that it takes a two-thirds vote of city council to oust him. Administration and antiadminstrationists joined the fray, highighted when Councilman Joe Allen charged Couch with "trying to run the city government" and that Couch preached one doctrine in council, but practiced another in his actions on the board of firemasters.

Head of Quartermaster Depot Tells Magnitude of Work.

The Army Quartermaster Corps will make the American soldier a fit fighting man who can protect the American way of life, and if need be, "lick the tar out of any nation or combination of people,' Colonel Thomas L. Holland, in charge of the Atlanta Quartermaster depot, yesterday told 1,500 employes of the vast Army warehouse at Glenn and Murphy streets. The occasion was the 166th anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps. Colonel Holland pointed out the responsibilities ipon this division of the Army in the present crisis.
"Today our country is faced with a serious situation. The task which lies before you during the next six or eight months will be far greater than anything with which we have been confronted.

"We at this depot today have the herculean task of supplying 40 per cent of the men in the United States Army today, a majority of whom are selectees, who are making great sacrifices to insure that our American way of life shall not perish from the face of the earth nd maybe to insure that people in other countries shall enjoy similar
